U. S. SPEEDS UP CHIEF'S ORDERS FOR RECOVERY

Thorough Cooperation Is Stressed By Federal Agencies

PUBLIC WORKS PLAN IS STUDIED

$200,000,000 project needs
Only Endorsement of President

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, July 12—Activity stimulated by orders from the boss to cooperate to the end spread today through the government agencies that are trying to restore prosperity.

To Restore Normalcy
The invigorated efforts centered about plans to get the unemployed back at work and guarantee them higher wages, feed those who cannot obtain jobs, lighten the home owners' burdens, help the farmer, protect the consumer—in short, to make things as they should be.

President Roosevelt today was making a last study of $200,000,000 worth of job-giving projects to be constructed under the public works program; the industrial administration laid plans for hearings on new work-spreading, wage-fixing agreements by major industries; the relief administration promised to care for transient needy and demanded that states help take care of the unemployed at home; the home loan board pushed its organization into a score of states. Attorney General Cummings was on guard against unjustified higher prices; the farm administration was pushing its crop-reduction program.

Works Program Approved
The $200,000,000 public works program already had the approval of the board charged with responsibility. It needed only the President's endorsement. Officials said much of this work could begin almost immediately, thus creating jobs quickly.

Likewise, the bureau of public roads studied allotments to states for highway construction.

Knights Templar Install Officers

Howard Sinclair, Hanoverton, past commander, was master of ceremonies when Salem commandery No. 42, Knights Templar, installed its new officers at a meeting Tuesday evening at the Masonic temple, East State st.

Frank Aiken, Leetonia, also a past commander, was marshal for the rites.

Wilbur Hatfield is the new commander, succeeding James Thurston, Lisbon.

Committees were appointed to assist in planning a memorial service for the late Dr. T. T. Church. It will be in September, although the day has not been set.

HOLDUP SUSPECT DENIES CHARGE

Youngstown Man Held In Louisville Robbery Presents Alibi

(By Associated Press)
CANTON, July 12—Roy "Happy" Marino, 26, public enemy No. 1 of Mahoning county, arrested yesterday in Youngstown, today revealed the alibi he will use to escape conviction on a charge of robbing the Louisville branch of the Geo. D. Hartner bank of $11,000 last June 10.

Marino came under suspicion shortly after the holdup when he flashed a large roll of bills, paid $400 balance on a car, paid five months rent in advance, bought $200 worth of furniture and a large amount of clothing for himself and family. The total, spent within a few days after the bank was robbed, amounted to $800, police revealed.

Marino's alibi is that he and two other Youngstown men engaged in a mysterious enterprise which brought them $800 each. He declined to disclose what he did in exchange for the money, but it insisted it was legitimate.

TRUST COMPANY MANIPULATIONS TOLD ON STAND

State Senate Committee
Hears Guardian Co.,
Testimony

HIGH SALARY IS PAID PRESIDENT

Investigator Asserts 1932
Statement Was Misleading

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, July 12—A story of complex manipulations of Guardian Trust Co. securities and checks and of yearly compensations of more than $100,000 to the bank's president was unfolded in part today before a state senate committee investigating the Cleveland banking situation.

Tells of Statement
Edward J. Falkenstein, a committee investigator, and Theodore W. Kearns, attorney and accountant, testified the bank prepared a statement of its conditions at the close of 1932 that made it appear its deposits were higher than they were and its debts smaller.

Falkenstein asserted the bank's records of deposits between Dec. 30, 1932, and Jan. 3, 1933, stood between $107,000,000 and $109,500,000, but that during the period the bank did not show a $7,000,000 liability under a repurchase agreement that should have been charged against the deposit total on Jan. 4. The deposit total fell to $101,000,000 where it had been on Dec. 29.

Arthur H. Ganger, attorney and certified accountant, told the story of how five or six officers received a total of $1,452,399.32 in salaries, bonuses and Christmas presents between 1928 and 1933.

Want Teeth In Laws
The committee is seeking information that will enable it to draft measures to put "teeth" in Ohio's banking laws to prevent a recurrence of the banking difficulties of last February and March. Listening in as "spectators" are assistant United States and county prosecuting attorneys, charged by their superiors with checking up on any evidence indicating criminality in the conduct of the bank's affairs.

Forester Writes
From Camp Goggins
Bridge building and chopping down trees are the occupations being followed by Mearl Lakin of Salem and other foresters stationed at Camp Goggins, Georgetown, Calif. The boy narrated in a letter today to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lakin, 925 Granite ave.

Extracts from Lakin's letter follow:

"We had a fine trip across the U. S. to Sacramento, Calif. After leaving Camp Knox, Ky., we traveled by way of Denver and Salt Lake arriving at Sacramento in the morning. We passed through miles and miles of desert country where parts of telephone poles were eaten off by alkali."

"We could see snow-covered peaks of the Rockies about 55 miles away. After passing through Reno, Nev., the mountain scenery was beautiful. We rested and looked around Sacramento then went to Placerville from where we went by trucks to Camp Goggins which is an old gold mine but is now flooded. Camp Goggins is about 75 miles from Reno, Nev., and 15 miles from Truckee, Calif."

"We are about one mile above sea level. The temperature goes down to about 30 above at night and up to 96 during the day. The air is very dry and the boys all are in good health."

"There are plenty of rattlesnakes here. While working in the forest we saw a bear and deer."

"I was on K. P. duty and also have been helping build bridges and chop down mancha trees. The wood is very tough. We move into our new mess tent and like it much better. Our food is better too."

"My permanent address is C. C. Co., 1506, Camp Goggins Mine, Georgetown, Calif."

DOCTOR IS SHOT BY 3 KIDNAPERS

Another St. Paul Physician Figure In Same Case

(By Associated Press)
ST. PAUL, July 12—Dr. W. H. Hedberg was kidnapped, drugged, shot and later released by three men, who had planned to mutilate him last night, he reported to Chief of Police T. E. Dahill today. Dr. E. E. Engberg was found in Hedberg's car after it had been knocked into a ditch by a train. Engberg is still unconscious.

Dr. Engberg was selected to perform an operation on Dr. Hedberg but refused, the chief said in a statement.

Then, he asserted, Dr. Engberg was drugged and placed in the Hedberg automobile, which was parked on a railroad right of way, where a passing train hit it.

Dr. Hedberg, with a bullet wound in his ear and bearing other marks of a struggle, was found in a ditch a half-mile from where Dr. Engberg was found in Hedberg's car.

Dr. Engberg was bleeding at the mouth when a train crew found him, but bore no other signs of injury. He recovered consciousness today and told of having been attacked and drugged, probably with ether, after being lured from his home by a false call.

Dr. Hedberg told a similar story of having been lured from his home by a false call and seized by three men.

Son of Kidnaped Banker Is Active

(By Associated Press)
ALTON, Ill., July 12—Mysterious activity of Carl Luer, son of August Luer, wealthy banker, today led to a report that a development in the case was expected.

At 3 a. m. a man left the Carl Luer home. The younger man has been handling affairs of the family since his father was seized Monday night in his own residence by two men and a woman.

Shortly afterward the same man arrived by motor car at the Alton police station and transferred to a police car. Accompanied by two officers he speeded away.

Police professed no knowledge of the presence of Luer with the officers. At the Carl Luer home his wife said he had left the house on a call with which she was not familiar.

A previous automobile trip by representatives of the banker's family ended with announcement that hoped for contact with the kidnapers had not been made.

Participants in this excursion, Lawrence Keller, Gus Rotach and Jerry Gould, state highway patrolman, left the residence of the elder Luer after his son had said he was eager to "talk business" with the gang.

FARLEY'S MEN

Seasoned hands at the Washington reporting business admit they are seeing new wrinkles in distribution of patronage under Postmaster Farley. The genial advance agent for the Roosevelt bandwagon during the campaign has become spoils distributor to one of the largest and hungriest mobs of job-seekers that living Democrats can remember.It is inevitable, but still unfortunate, that the postmaster's methods appear a little crude—in the sense of giving offense to idealists only. Politically, they are perfect.
By the end of another year, Democrats should have a party organization subsidized by taxation that Republicans won't be able to beat for years.There is a rather frightening possibility of a reaction against the patronage distribution which may do the party more harm than good, however. When reporters who have been around Washington for years confess that things are being done which penetrate even the hardened sensibilities of those who thought they had seen everything, it is time to walk carefully.A patronage scandal—even the threat of a scandal—would do the party real harm. By sacrificing public confidence and respect, it would affect the whole country, furthermore. The Democratic party, pending another congressional election, is the sole agency by which President Roosevelt's plans can be authorized and financed. If it gorges itself on public jobs to the point where the people become convinced that it is interested in nothing else, the political system will be endangered.It is Postmaster Farley who should be thinking of this. He is playing an intriguing game for high stakes.
He is filling the ranks of jobholders
with men whom he can command.
The people understand the game
and they believe they understand Mr. Farley. They hope that for the sake of everyone concerned he will not stretch the rules too far.

COORDINATING RECOVERY

President Roosevelt's announcement that a temporary super-cabinet meeting would replace regular cabinet meetings one day each week shows to what size the recovery administration has grown. Besides members of the regular cabinet,
there will be present at the super-cabinet meetings; the director of the budget, the chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corp., the head of the farm administration, the chairman of the Home Loan Corp., the administrator of the industrial recovery act, the administrator of the agricultural adjustment organization, the federal relief administrator, the transportation coordinator, the director of the civilian conservation corps and the head of the Tennessee valley authority. All together, they represent an increase of 100 per cent in the size of the normal cabinet.Meeting together, this score of administrators holding in their hands the greatest authority ever given such a small group will attempt to coordinate the attack of American government on the problem of depression. Fortified by the advice of other scores of men with specialized knowledge in all fields,
they will constitute a supreme council of the nation. As nearly as it lies within the power of President Roosevelt to do it, he has gathered about him the representative intelligence of the nation's best minds. Whatever comes of the great experiment now under way, it cannot be charged that the potential power of thinking was ignored.
If a supreme council, fond hope of many a dreamer, can bring salvation, salvation is assured.

What Others Say

AN ENGLISH JOKE

The proposal jestingly made in the British House of Commons that the French and English war debts
to the United States be liquidated with wine and Scotch whisky was of course only an English joke. As such it was superior to the run of nine English jokes.In view of the great reluctance and hesitancy with which the debts are being paid, if at all, the United States might be justified in trading them out. Anything is better than an L. O. U.It has already been pointed out by statistical experts in this country that in the event of repeal there will be a dearth of drink owing to limited distilling facilities and the added fact that it takes time to age whisky. It would therefore be a happy arrangement if the domestic supply could be augmented by importations.However, we fear the only object our friends across the sea would have in supplying liquor, even in payment of honest debts, would be to get this country gloriously tight and then touch it while it is that hilarious and beneficent condition
for a bigger and better loan.—Ohio

The Stars Say:

For Thursday, July 13

A very interesting and propitious chain of planetary aspects both to lunar and mutual direction, justify the presage of a very pleasant, progressive and profitable state of affairs, with possibly the stress on personal rather than business activities, although the happy and auspicious private relations may find beneficial reactions in all realms of endeavor.Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a splendid year, with much progress, prosperity and pleasure in the ofing, with social,
romantic and personal felicity reacting on the business prospects and associations. But an inclination to rash, extravagant and impusive acts should be held in check lest it prove a factor of self-undoing.A child born on this day may have a successful, happy and prosperous life.

Use Leisure Time For Health

In a city park, the other day, I was amused by the sight of two sailors rowing on one of the lakes.
Though off sea duty they soughtrelaxation and to enjoy it. This seems a strange vacation for a

of scene is advisable, a vacation should be a period of mental and physical rest.Too often time and energy are wasted in efforts at recreation.
Little rest is obtained and, in many instances, the vacationist returns more tired than he was before he started.

Avoid Over-Exertion

If you return worn out and nervous your vacation has really been harmful. How can rest be obtained if strenuous exercise, late hours and little sleep make up the vacation period? Indeed, too many of us indulge in sports that are unsuited to our physical powers.A week-end at the seashore may lead to over-exertion in swimming.
This is a dangerous procedure, because it is not every heart that can endure strenuous swimming, even for a short time. Few persons consult their doctors before indulging in energetic exercises. They do not inquire whether they can swim in the ocean or just how much swimming it is safe to take. There is no doubt that many serious ailments could be avoided if more persons did this.

Vacations Are Necessary

Sea bathing is beneficial to some and harmful to others. Mountain air is extremely healthful to some and injurious to others. No definite rule can be laid down because the factors that influence the choice of climate are individual ones. They depend on the state of health.No one will deny that vacations, whether long or short, in winter or summer, are necessary. The maintenance of good health depends on the sensible use of leisure. A properly conducted vacation improves the appetite, digest on and sleep.Otherwise it does not benefit the body.The wise plan is to take stock of your physical health by periodical examinations. Your physician will advise whether you may exercise vigorously or if it is best to avoid exertion and strain. He will make suggestions that will increase the benefits of the days away from work.

NEW YORK, July 12.—It's re-

found their way out of the woods.
This is especially true of innumera-

when the anesthesia of despair wore off, turned from fashion de-

she make herself she is directress of two jointly owned hotels. And who, home and job gone, hitchhiked to New York and after six weeks on the breadline was ready to call it a day with a leap off a asked a stranger for a light. The flame revealed a one-these pal. They

STEEL ALONE

CHEVROLET

CHEVROLET Why is it that every 12-reinforced by hardwood? Why is it that every make of car selling for over type? Why? For the same reason that Chevrolet uses it exclusively. Because every test and every experiment have definitely proved: STEEL ALONE IS NOT ENOUGH!The trouble with steel alone is that it stands just so much shock and punish-rumble and rattle. BUT—when you put the two together—a heavy, staunch

"FIRST NIGHT MURDER"

READ THIS FIRST

Julius Brandt, theatrical producer, was slain in his seat at the first night performance of Ellis Martin's mystery play. The murder was committed during a moment of darkness. Brandt, Grady of the homicide squad consented to let Ellis help him with the investigation.

Margaret Manning was seated two seats away from Brandt when he was slain. It was learned she had lived with Brandt for years and that he had that day married her daughter, Sheila. Sheila was making her debut as a star in that night's play. She told Ellis, who loved her, that she married Brandt because he threatened to destroy her mother's reputation.

Matthew Burton, Brandt's partner, told Ellis that there were peculiar circumstances in the violent death of Mrs. Manning's husband. Burton had been broadcasting from a radio station at the time Brandt was slain.

Ellis and Grady learned that Bonnie Adaire, movie star, had been refused a leading role in a film.

They went to Bonnie's apartment and found her murdered, her throat cut. No weapon was in sight. They learned she had quarreled with "Grits" Perino, a gangster. Ellis went to a night club to which Bonnie had carried an admission card. He found Perino there but was himself drugged. The next morning he and Burton received telegrams threatening their lives. Later in the day Margaret Manning came to see him. She told Ellis the strange, frightful story of her life and loves. Ellis' servant, Sam, was found dead, soon after her departure. The next day Burton told Grady that $200,000 worth of Brandt's securities had disappeared.

CHAPTER 27

"Well, they're gone. As a matter of fact, I was just going to let the lieutenant look over the safe when you came in." Burton rose and walked over to the far wall. To the casual eye the wall presented an unbroken surface of oak paneling. With interest Martin watched the producer adjust his glasses, peer apparently at the grain and then slide his hand gently over the polished wood.

Strange Safe

There was a low grinding sound, like the winding of a cheap alarm clock. The panel slipped slowly out of sight, disclosing the surface of a small wall-safe. The odd feature of the safe was that it presented the eye a perfectly flat surface. The usual disc or handle was not there—to all outward purposes there was nothing in the flat, dull surface of the metal to indicate a mode of ingress.

Burton passed his hand over it, pressing his palm against it. The movement reminded Martin of some one trying to determine whether the dissemper on the wall had dried. A second later the solid metal plate slipped out of sight behind the panel. The safe was open. It was divided into four inside partitions, each filled with papers. There was also a small, closed-in section, which the producer opened with another pressure of his palm.

Burton turned to Grady. "Now I defy any one to come into this office and open the safe without drilling a way through. And you can see for yourself that it has not been drilled. It has no lock, in the conventional sense of the term. It yields to a pressure device, an elaboration of the ordinary push-button idea. As a matter of fact it's a patent of my own," he added, with a touch of naive pride. "It took J. B. nearly a year to get the hang of it. And yet, like most apparently tricky things, it's really very simple when you know how."

Martin Tries

Grady ran practiced fingers through the batch of papers. They were contracts, for the most part, dealing with past, present, and future theatrical productions. There were also some government securities taken out in Matthew Burton's name. While Grady went through each, Martin ran his fingers over the metal front of the safe. Burton good-naturedly closed it again in answer to his plea to be allowed to try to open it. The safe remained firmly closed, however. Martin ran his fingers over the surface again and again as he had watched the producer doing. All to no purpose.

"It's beyond me," he admitted to Burton. "I never knew you were an inventor. Whatever made you take up the theatrical racket when you can rig up things like this? You've missed your vocation."

The producer laughed. "I've thought of that, too, sometimes," he answered. "When I was a good bit younger I thought I'd be a second Marconi or another Edison. But the trouble seemed to be that my ambitions were cut off all proportion to my talents. Couldn't think of any great inventions, so I gravitated to the theater. But I've done pretty well at it."

Martin turned back to the safe. Again he tried to open it. And again he failed.

Grady looked up from the documents with a frown. "Nothing here," he said briefly. "I think a little chat with Mallory wouldn't do us any harm. I'd like to find out what he used for money in Van Leyden's stock pool. Want to come along, Martin?"

"The money that Mallory used?" Martin turned to Grady with a curiously intense look on his face. "I've got an idea myself. Let's go."

Listening Ea

On the other side of the door Kitty hastily detached her listening ear from the vicinity of the key-hole. She tip-toed back to her desk and as Martin and Grady came out of Burton's office she had resumed her typing.

Grady shut his eyes wearily when he and Martin got into the police car. Martin, obsessed with his own thoughts, a triple hammer thumping and pounding at his brain, welcomed the silence that gave him a chance to think.

When the car stopped outside a large and expensive apartment house Grady roused himself. "Well, go see Mallory in a little while," he said. "First I want to have a talk with that show girl he's been spending his time with. When one of these conservative Wall St. men start playing Broadway there's no telling what'll happen."

Martin followed him into the foyer of the apartment building where Grady told the telephone operator to announce them to Miss Carletta Young. Miss Young had apparently no reason for refusing to see the police because the operator nodded, said, "1401" and resumed her reading of that morning's tabloid which devoted itself to further fanciful word and picture descriptions of Bonnie Adaire's hectic career.

A trim French maid opened the door and ushered them into a large room the furnishings of which were evidence of an extremely liberal allowance. Lolling in a deep chair, a Pomeranian in her lap and a cigarette in a hand that flashed with diamonds, was a strikingly attractive girl, whose vivid hair fluffed about long, green eyes and accentuated the delicate palor of a creamy skin. Bright red lips that vied with the red of her hair completed the color scheme.

"Sit down," she greeted them, waving to chairs about the room. "I'm Carletta Young. What's the police department think it's got on me? There's cigars and cigarettes on the table if it'll make you talk faster. I've got to dress for lunch in a couple of minutes."

Grady and Martin seated themselves and Grady took a cigar from his pocket. "I won't keep you long, Miss Young," he replied. "I'm just following up a bit of routine business and thought that you might be able to help me."

The girl put the dog on the floor. "Run along, Dodo," she cooed to it. "Mama's got to talk to the big man." Go on, precious. Fifi—" she raised her voice. The trim French maid appeared at the door. "Give Dodo his milk." The maid picked up the squirming dog and left the room. The show girl crossed her slim legs and waved her cigarette.

Ready To Talk

"Now then, big boy," she said mockingly, "go into your song and dance."

"Miss Young," began Grady, "you know Mr. Mallory, I believe?" "She arched her eyebrows. "Sure. Dad and I are good friends. What about it?"

"Only this. We have learned indirectly that Mr. Mallory's financial condition is such that his business may shortly be attached by creditors."

The girl leaned forward. Her eyes narrowed and the green flame she shot at Grady was as hard as the sparkle of the jewels that blazed on her arms. "Well," she demanded tensely, "what's that got to do with me?"

Grady considered the tip of his cigar. "Sometimes, Miss Young," he answered slowly, "when a man's business is attached, his creditors are apt to take over any convertible assets. Like, for instance, jewelry that he owns. Now, just suppose that he recently bought somebody some presents and that those presents weren't paid for. The store where he charged them would be empowered to take back the articles. If he had paid for them and his creditors could prove that they had been paid for with money that he had—shall I say borrowed from them?—the same procedure might be followed."

Fierce Materialism

"Yeah?" The girl had risen, defiance in every line of her body. "Well, let me tell you something now. Anything I get, I keep. This is mine and I'm holding on to it. Get me?"

"Certainly," replied Grady. "But when Mallory tells on the witness stand how he spent the money and—"

"Why that dirty yellow rat," she blazed. "So he's gonna get me to cover him, is he? Come around and try to take back the stuff he gave me, is he? I just like to see him try it."

"But, of course," put in Grady mildly, "if he needs money for his defense, hell naturally think that you'll want to help him out by turning over some of the jewelry and—"

"Listen to me, big boy," she interrupted. Her eyes met his levelly and her voice was hard. "If he got himself in a jam, that's his hard luck. I'm no Girl Scout. He gave me these bracelets yesterday—" she held out her left arm—"and told me they set him back fifty grand. How he got it is nothing in my young life. This hunk of ice belongs to me, and if he comes crawling to get it back, then it's just too bad."

Grady rose. "I'm sorry, Miss Young. I didn't mean to upset you. I didn't say that that's what was going to happen. I merely told you what might happen if his business was attached as we have an idea it may be."

She smiled, but there was no amusement in her eyes. "O. K., big boy. Now you know where I stand. What happens to him is none of my business. I did him a favor by accepting this jewelry and if you think I'm going to break down and cry worrying about him, you're just losing sleep for nothing. Can I mix you boys a drink?"

Grady declined for both of them and he and Martin made their way out of the apartment.

Bitter Cynicism

"There's love for you," the lieutenant growled. "Mallory strips himself clean to keep her in diamonds and if she finds out he's broke, she won't even kiss him good-by. The more I see of Broadway the sicker it makes me."

He strode toward their car and Martin got in beside him.

"Now we'll pay Mallory a call. I took a long chance with that dame, getting her hopped up like that on a bluff. I just had a hunch he might've been spending some money fast and loose and I wanted to get an idea how much. Well, it didn't take long for her to spill everything she knew."

Mallory's dark, shifty eyes roved uneasily from Grady to Martin and back again to the lieutenant. He puffed nervously at his cigar.

Where are the 44 Liberty bearer bonds that Brandt sent down to you?

Looks Like Hollywood is Going Nudist

the morning of his death? asked Grady without further preliminary. "Brandt didn't send any bonds down to me," Mallory's voice was emphatic. "I told Burton so this morning. My secretary will confirm that. She takes in all the mail and packages and makes a note of their receipt immediately. I tell you I know nothing whatever about them."

Grady looked at him levelly. "Conversation Admitted" "You were talking to Brandt over the telephone the morning of his death, weren't you?"

"I'm not denying that, answered the broker. "I told you so myself at the theater. But—"

"Brandt was overheard to say that he was sending down the bonds that afternoon."

Mallory shifted his position. "I have no recollection of it. I remember we spoke of a pool in which we were both interested. The connection was bad—we were cut off once and he called me back."

"Oh, so you were cut off?" Grady's voice sounded skeptical. "And I suppose it was while you were cut off that Brandt went on talking into the phone, telling you about the securities. And when he got back on the wire he made no further mention of them. Do you expect me to believe that, Mallory?"

The broker's heavy face set in a sullen look. "We were cut off," he repeated. "I don't care what the hell you believe. Anyway, what's the idea of coming down here and cross-examining me like this? Do you think I killed him?"

"I didn't say you did," returned Grady noncommittally. He felt that it would give him the greatest pleasure to march the broker into Wall street with a pair of bracelets on his wrists.

"Where did you get the hundred thousand to put up for the pool?" he demanded.

"What the hell business is that of yours?" A dull red flush crept into Mallory's face. His shifty eyes reminded Martin of a weasel that was cornered.

"Plenty. I imagine," snapped Grady. "Are you going to tell me now or would you prefer to accompany me down to headquarters?" There was an uncompromising look in his steady eyes. "You've been broke since the market crash. Now you suddenly get a hundred thousand in ready cash for the pool and fifty thousand for some bracelets. You're not going to tell me you picked it off a tree, are you?"

Can Mallory explain where he got this $150,000, or is he trapped? Dent m.s tomorrow's chapter.

WEDDING DATE ANNOUNCED

Miss Betty Franke has selected Monday, July 24, as the date for her marriage to Dan H. Brechard and an announcement of the wedding date was made to her associates of the Quota club at a dinner meeting Tuesday evening at the Fletcher Inn, East State st.

The table was beautifully decorated in a motif of yellow and white. At each place was a flower tied with green and attached to this was a small parchment envelope. A "heart" inside the envelope bearing the names of the prospective bride and groom revealed the secret to the guests. A tiered wedding cake on which was a miniature bride and groom, centered the table. The cake was baked by a member of the club.

Miss Hilda Franke, sister of the bride-elect, entertained with three vocal solos, "I Love You Truly," "At Dawning" and "O Promise Me," with Mrs. Bess Hendricks playing the accompaniment.

Hilda Franke, Salem, R. D., and Mrs. Rose Alpern, were guests of the club.

This meeting was in charge of Miss Eva Simpson and Mrs. Goldy Schwartz.

In two weeks the members will hold a picnic at the Salem Country club, west of the city.

LOYAL WOMEN'S CLASS

The home of Misses Hilda Roessler and Addie Bousall on the Ellsworth rd. was the scene of a delightful social gathering Tuesday evening when members of the Loyal Women's class of the Christian church, their families and guests met there for the class picnic, an annual event.

One hundred and fifty-four were served at a supper, which preceded a devotional service in charge of Mrs. William Tolson.

Mrs. R. D. Painter was in charge of the program. An octet comprised of Mrs. Percy King, Miss Anna Mae Painter, Miss Ethel Shears, Miss Nellie Naragon, Miss Naomi Shinn, Mrs. Charles Wilhelm, Miss Elsie Jones and Miss Rachel Cope, offered two selections. Lamorne Derr directed the numbers; Homer Taylor played the accompaniment.

Mrs. James Briggs, Canton, formerly of Salem, contributed two whistling solos and Mr. Derr sang two solos.

NATURE HELPS
REGULATION
MONEY NEEDED

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1933 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

GOVERNMENT tells farmers to reduce wheat acreage 20 per cent. tells the cotton men to reduce. Suddenly, it discovers that this year's crop will be the smallest in 40 years. The oat crop smallest on record. That may explain the sudden rise in grain prices. Speculators knew what was going to happen before the government knew. May wheat went up to $1.14 yesterday.

THE GOVERNMENT will investigate, regulate, and if necessary, direct every kind of business. That is the biggest news since the war started.

A minimum wage and a maximum "hours of work" schedule will apply to every business and industry. The suggestion is $14 a week for the lowest wages paid anywhere, and a working week of 35 to 40 hours.

A day's work of about six hours could hardly be enforced on the farmer. He will tell you that it takes a farm hand about six hours to get his team fed, harnessed, out to the field, then back again, unharnessed, fed and put away for the night.

COLONEL ANTHONY J. DREXEL, banker in Paris and Philadelphia, comes home worried about the dollar, advising Americans to "remember what happened to Germany."

As well tell your friends, drinking a small glass of beer, to remember what happened to a man with delirium tremens.

We could make money sufficiently plentiful to do business without printing tens of thousands of millions of worthless paper, as Germany did.

COLONEL DREXEL reports "I saw no outrages in Germany. The Jews that were thrown out of the country were Communists," which will surprise friends of the distinguished scientist, Professor Einstein. He is not generally supposed to be a Communist.

For "reckless inflation" that worries Colonel Drexel and others, facts take care of that.

INSTEAD of increasing, the circulation of dollars in America dropped off $92,000,000 in June. All the dollar in existence amount to only $46.31 for each American. Is that inflation? A healthy colored slave, in the old days, was worth $1,000.

The county needs five to ten billion more dollars and ought to print them. If the government printed 50 billions that would not be inflation, considering the nation's wealth. This isn't some little European nation. It is a real country.

MONEY is not plentiful in Japan. One state in this union is richer than the Japanese empire. But where self-defense is concerned Japan does not hesitate, and she will spend $156,000,000 to build up her navy equal to Britain's or the United States.

The Japanese keep up to date. They will spend $48,000,000 on eight new air fleets, build six new submarines, eight torpedo boats, fast cruisers, aircraft carriers of high speed, and not one battleship.

Unlike this country, which remains 50 years behind, the Japanese are not going to build any battleship targets for enemy airplanes. We are about to spend tens of millions re-

Is Factor "Kidnaping" a Ruse?

JOHN FACTOR and SON JEROME.

MRS. DELLA FACTOR.

Charging that the recent kidnaping of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, Chicago stock promoter, is a hoax and that Factor is in hiding, Lewis Bernays, British Consul at Chicago, has demanded the missing man's arrest. Factor, who once played cards with the Prince of Wales, is wanted in England charged with fleeing British investors of $7,000,000 in phony stock deals. Harry Geen, his partner, was extradited from Philadelphia and is now in London awaiting trial. Bernays further asserted that the "kidnaping" of Factor's son, Jerome, a few months ago, was a prelude frameup to make Factor's disappearance look legitimate.

Heat Takes Lives of Two in Texas; Look For Relief

KANSAS CITY, July 12 — A gasping, sun scorched southwest, today hoped for the clouds, forecast by weather observers to alleviate somewhat the heat that caused four deaths Tuesday.

Two died in Dallas, Tex. where the mercury reached 104 and two succumbed in Oklahoma, one in the capital city and one near Perry. Oklahoma City's 106 equalled the record set there in July 1914.

But Vernon, Tex., topped all high temperature readings with 115, the city's twenty-first consecutive day of 100-degree weather. It was a new high for the season as was the 107 recorded at Sherman, Tex.

Reported temperatures in Kansas and Missouri did not range so high but the population sweltered. Kansas City's maximum was 92. Wichita reported 98.

Recent rains in parts of Missouri and Kansas came in time to save crops but two federal crop statisticians in Oklahoma City predicted failure of the corn crop in the state unless rain falls quickly. Robert P. Chandler, Oklahoma City fish and game warden, said thousands of fish were dying "because the water is too hot."

Kent College Head Given Senate O. K.

KENT, July 12 — Dr. J. O. Engleman, president of Kent state college, today held a state senate committee's assurance that there was "nothing to substantiate the charges of David Ladd Rockwell, former Kent trustee, that the college situation was the result of Dr. Engleman's connection with a book company."

Rockwell, a former nationally known Republican party worker, led a successful battle to oust Dr. Engleman, then found his victory overturned by the refusal of the senate to confirm his appointment as a trustee and the subsequent decision of one of his followers among the trustees to vote to rescind the dismissal action and continue Dr. Engleman as head of the state school.

Senator William P. Haynes, chairman of the investigating committee, announced the decision favoring Dr. Engleman at the close of the final session of the hearing into conditions at the school.

Hold Marion Youth 2 Hours, Free Him

(By Associated Press)
MARION, July 12—Marion police today disclosed the story of an attempted kidnaping in which an 11-year-old boy, George Lane, was held captive for a short time by two men, armed with pistols. Officers said they believed the kidnapers intended to seize another boy and free George when they discovered their error.

The Lane boy, son of W. C. Lane, Jefferson county school teacher, who lives in Marion, was seized while standing on a sidewalk. He said a man stepped from a large closed automobile and forced him at the point of a revolver, to enter the machine in which another man sat. The lad said he was gagged and that as the car passed a cemetery one of the men said "you may end up there."

Young Lane told police that after driving about for a short time, the men pushed him from the car, one of them saying: "After this don't interfere with our business."

Hardware Defeats Billiards--Tackles Calkins Chicks Today

Eighth-Inning Rally Wins For Famous Outfit In Thrilling Clash

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.

United Cigars	6	2	.750
Calkins Chicks	5	2	.714

Battling to retain undisputed possession of first place in the Class A league, Salem Hardware clubbers, victorious by a 6-3 score yesterday over the Schafer Billiards, tackle the pennant-aspiring Calkins Chicks at Centennial park at 6 this evening.

Play-Off of Protested Game

The contest will be a play-off of a protested game won ten days ago, 10-9, by the Hardware, but which was ordered thrown out of league standings by the board of arbitration after the Chicks' protest against a decision by Umpire George Earley was upheld.

A thrilling contest is anticipated in that a victory for the Calkins' combine will throw the league race into a three-way tie between the Chicks, United Cigars and Hardware.

The Hardware now leads the race by one-half game, the Cigars are second and Chicks third.

11 Errors Aid Hardware

Eleven errors virtually handed the Hardware the game with the Billiards last evening. The victors tallied four times in the first frame and coasted through to win handily.

"Red" McConnell held the Schafer aggregation to four hits and will probably pitch against the Chicks who will use George McFeely as their slab representative.

The Famous Dairy team staged a brilliant last-inning rally to nose out the Salem China team, 7-6 in a thrilling battle yesterday.

The teams were tied at 5-all at the end of the seventh. The Pottery scored once in its half of the eighth but the Dairy men came back strong in their half of the frame to score twice.

Vincent Pitches Well

Harry Vincent allowed the foe but six hits only to see his teammates hand the Dairy men the victory by virtue of eight fielding misplays. Herron, pitching for the winners, was ejected for 12 hits.

Brothers Win Net Laurels

By L. L. FEMRITE

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW ORLEANS, July 12.—If ancient coats of arms were in style, the Sutter family of New Orleans would boast a shield emblazoned with tennis racquets—racquets which have dealt many a disappointment to aspiring champions and caused those at the top no end of worry.

For the Sutter brothers, Clifford, Edward and Ernest, appear headed for international tennis honors.

Already they have accumulated notable records in this department, and judging from the pace they have set they'll be hard to stop.

Clifford played in the Wimbledon Singles Championships this year, the greatest of all tennis competitions.

Edward performed in the national collegiate doubles, and Ernest made fine showings in the Memphis Country Club invitation tournament and the Southern championships at Atlanta.

The brothers range in age from 16 to 24, Clifford being the oldest and better known. He won the Southern championship several times and ranks No. 3 in the nationals.

Eddie was co-captain of the 1933 Tulane tennis squad. Ernie is a Fortier High School student. Southern junior double champion and ranked as one of the most promising youngsters in the South today.

Each of the brothers is a star in his own class.

Many experts believe that Clifford should have been a member of this year's Davis Cup team. Included in this group is Bill Tilden, who criticized the action of the U. S. L. T. A. in failing to include Clifford on the American team.

LEAGUE LEADERS LOSE GROUND IN PENNANT FIGHTS

White Sox Trim Senators, Cards Beat Giants In Games Yesterday

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

Associated Press Sports Writer

The slump of the New York Giants, a long awaited event which has been keeping the hopes of various other clubs in the National league alive, appears to be well under way. A losing streak which began when the Giants tackled a July 4 doubleheader at Boston has extended through seven straight games and now four clubs are closer to the league leaders than the second-place Cardinals were on July 3.

Cards Win, 2-1

The Cards, by virtue of a 2-1 "gift" victory over the Giants yesterday, are only 2½ games behind. The Cubs moved into third place three games back of the leaders yesterday by defeating the Brooklyn Dodgers 6-2 while the Boston Braves were taking a 5-3 decision from Pittsburgh that left the Pirates and the tribe following at one-game intervals.

A combination of weak hitting and weaker fielding again wrecked the Giants yesterday. Errors in the seventh gave the Cards both their runs.

The Cubs needed only one inning, the eighth, to beat Brooklyn, facing Owen Carroll for four hits and having a couple of errors tossed in.

Boston won without much trouble behind Tom Zachary's tight flinging, the Phillies, meanwhile, moved out of the league cellar by taking a 2-1 eleven inning decision from the Cincinnati Reds when Don Hurst pitched and scored on Wes Schulmerich's fly.

White Sox Beat Senators

With the aid of the White Sox, the New York Yankees tightened up the American league race. The Yanks pounded Larry Herbert early to defeat the St. Louis Browns 5-4.

The Sox did the same thing even more emphatically to Al Crowder and the Senators, winning 9-3 by scoring eight runs in the first three innings. The defeat reduced Washington's lead to two games.

The third place Athletics kept pace by defeating the Cleveland Indians 6 to 4. The Red Sox handed the Detroit Tigers their fourth straight loss when a double by Dusty Cooke led to two runs in the fourth and a 2-1 victory.

Lucky Strikes Too Much For Pirates

Salem Lucky Strikes hit hard and took advantage of frequent infield misplays to gain an easy 11-5 victory over the Pirates at Reilly stadium yesterday.

Studebaker's June Sales Take Jump

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 12—Studebaker, world's oldest vehicle manufacturer, wound up the first six months of 1933 with the highest volume of June business since 1930, according to an announcement made here today by Paul G. Hoffman, President of The Studebaker Sales Corporation of America.

"Sales of Studebaker and Rockne passenger and commercial cars during June of this year reached a total of 5,050 units," Mr. Hoffman said. "This was 85% ahead of June, 1931, when 4,650 cars were sold and 59% over June, 1932, when 4,770 sales were made.

"Despite these increases in sales, the factory's June production schedule was unable to meet the demands of the dealers for cars. A total of 7,548 orders for Studebaker and Rockne cars were recorded for June, the largest number for any June since boom of 1929," Mr. Hoffman stated.

TROY, O., July 12—Chief of Police E. J. Smick was met by a little girl who handed him a note that read: "Please buy candy for five cents. There are eight of us kids and our father is hurt and unable to work."

The family, which included four other children, was found in a parked automobile. Smick said the father was able-bodied and not injured. He was Edward Reeves of Dayton, Ohio, the officer said. The family soon vacated the city.

Beauteous Film Player at Play

Dolores Del Rio, famed motion picture beauty, has the whole Pacific Ocean as a backyard at her home at Santa Monica, Calif., and as you see, she makes good use of it. The Mexican star is, as all well-informed fans know, Mrs. Cedric Gibbons, wife of the movie art director.

William Powell Is Coming In "Private Detective 62"

WILLIAM POWELL returns to the screen in the type of role he made so popular—that of a private detective in "Private Detective 62" coming to the State theater to play Thursday only.

Has Interesting Character

Powell, because of his parts, may not be regarded the perfect screen lover, but he talks like one and although he does not lay claim to being the screen's most romantic figure, he has played more love scenes than any other actor in Hollywood.

Until the advent of talkies, Powell was never entrusted with a sympathetic lover's role—now that the screen "speaks" we see a new figure. In "One Way Passage" with Kay Francis he proved his exceptional ability to win one's sympathy and to handle romantic situations. Most of us still remember the sound of the champagne glasses being broken over the bar as Miss Francis and Powell stood on the boat together on what they knew to be a "one way passage."

In "Private Detective 62" the star again demonstrates his ability to play a romantic part with sincerity as well as sophistication. This time he is teamed with Margaret Lindsay, a comparative newcomer to the screen—perhaps you will recall her as the girl who, with her young husband were "lost" on the Titanic in the success "Calvalcade."

Dislikes His Profession

Powell, as the title suggests, is a sleuth but one of a different order than his Philo Vance characterizations. In this thrilling and highly entertaining offering he is a tarnished, but more interesting, spy, crying wiles and wayward husbands. Discredited in diplomatic circles, Powell is forced to employ his genius in domestic spheres.

By his charm and adroitness he is usually successful in a profession he hates. Then he undertakes to "spy" on Miss Lindsay but instead falls in love with her.

AN interesting and exciting story is told in "The Girl In 419," playing at the State for the last time this evening.

Good Cast of Characters

James Dunn is cast in the most dramatic role he has had in a long time and does excellent work. He plays a young doctor at the police emergency hospital where Gloria Stuart is brought badly beaten and dying.

William Powell

Day after day Dunn tries all his skill to save the life of the girl and finally to his great joy she regains consciousness. She refuses to tell who she is or anything concerning the incidents that led up to the day she was brought to the hospital.

The rest of the plot deals with the girl's story as she finally tells it, and the gangsters involved. David Manners, giving a fine performance, is shot by one of the gangsters when the young interne attempts to stop the crook from entering the hospital room where the wounded girl is.

SAN RAFAEL, Cal.—Frank E. Feiz was given a sentence which he himself was charged with executing. Found guilty of reckless driving after several similar offenses, he agreed to write to the state traffic office and request that his driving license be permanently revoked. The judge also ordered him to sell his car and give the money to his mother.

Roosevelt Orders Civil Service For Postmaster Jobs

WASHINGTON, July 12—In an executive order changing regulations for postmaster appointments, President Roosevelt today requested Postmaster General Farley to draft legislation to be submitted to the next congress placing all postmasters under civil service.

The executive order will permit all acting postmasters named since March 4—approximately 1,000—to remain in office without examination. It also raises the maximum age limit from 65 to 66 years and reduces the minimum residence requirements from two years to one.

In a letter to Farley, Mr. Roosevelt said: "The studies which you have made show that there would be large savings to the government if the existing law were changed and all placed on a strictly civil service basis as is the case under the existing law relating to fourth class postoffices."

The new executive order authorizes the postmaster general to submit to the president for nomination without examination, the name of any regularly commissioned postmaster or the name of any person in the classified civil service. The acting postmasters now hold commissions.

If no such person is nominated, the postmaster general must certify the fact to the civil service commission which is directed to hold an open competitive examination to test the fitness of applicants.
